Neil Wolitzer Joins Evercore as Senior Managing Director in the Real Estate Investment Banking Group

NEW YORK, January 16, 2024 – Evercore announced today (NYSE: EVR) that Neil Wolitzer has joined the firm as a senior managing director in the Real Estate Investment Banking group.

Daniel Mendelow, co-head of U.S. Investment Banking, said, “Real estate is a priority growth area for our firm. We believe that Neil’s integrity and client-focused values align very well with our own, and we are looking forward to benefiting from his experience, creativity and vision to help grow this critical business over the next decade and beyond.”

Mr. Wolitzer added, “There has never been a greater need in the real estate sector for independent advice, new ideas and differentiated capital-raising capabilities. Evercore provides the perfect platform to meet those client needs. I couldn’t be more excited to work with such a world-class team of professionals to help serve our clients and grow our business for many years to come.”

Previously, Mr. Wolitzer was a partner and managing director in the real estate investment banking group at Goldman Sachs where he served real estate clients across a broad range of strategic and capital-raising transactions for almost 20 years. Prior to that, Mr. Wolitzer was an investment banker at Bear Stearns and previously practiced corporate law in New York.

Mr. Wolitzer holds a J.D. from Duke University School of Law and an A.B. (magna cum laude) from Princeton University.
