Clay McCoy Joins Evercore as Senior Managing Director in Private Capital Advisory

NEW YORK, May 19, 2026 – Evercore announced today that Clay McCoy has joined the firm as a senior managing director in its private capital advisory (PCA) group, based in New York.

“We are pleased to welcome Clay to Evercore,” said Nigel Dawn, global head of Evercore’s private capital advisory business. “He brings deep infrastructure secondaries expertise, strong market relationships and a proven ability to advise clients in complex markets. As the secondary market continues to expand across asset classes, Clay will further strengthen our ability to deliver tailored liquidity solutions to sponsors and investors.”

“Evercore has built a leading global platform in private capital advisory, and I am thrilled to be joining at an important stage in the market’s evolution,” said Mr. McCoy. “As secondaries continue to grow in importance as a portfolio management tool for sponsors and investors, I look forward to working with clients to address a wide range of liquidity and portfolio management objectives, particularly in infrastructure and energy.”

Mr. McCoy joins Evercore from Campbell Lutyens, where he was a managing director and led North American infrastructure secondaries advisory. Previously, he was a director at Solomon Partners, where he advised on a range of private capital and M&A transactions. Earlier in his career, Mr. McCoy held roles at RBC Capital Markets and Bank of America Merrill Lynch.

Mr. McCoy earned a Master of Science in accountancy from Wake Forest University and a Bachelor of Arts in economics and commerce and psychology from Hampden-Sydney College.
